Director's Note

Everyone says it all comes together in the end. Yes it does- but maybe not in the way everyone means. What comes together are the hours of work and effort people have put into the show. What comes together are the details that someone took the time to put into their character, set, costume or any of the 100 other jobs people have in this show. What comes together is passion for a singular purpose- to be the best we can be!

My favorite part of these shows is not always what you see on stage, but the relationships built between kids. Over 80 students, with different interests, talents and grades start the show as strangers and end the show as the best of friends. Relationships forged in the fire of a show last forever!

Thank you so much for attending Annie for and your continued support of the arts in Lake City! This community shows up for students in so many ways. I invite you to take a red star from the foyer entryway and write a message to your favorite (or multiple favorites) orphans, servants or cabinet members anytime before the play, during intermission or at the end of the play. They love to hear from you!

A message from Supt. Ariana Wright

On behalf of Lake City Public Schools, welcome to our All School Musical, Annie! Our community has a vibrant arts tradition, and our schools are proud to be part of it. This production brings together the talent and dedication of actors, singers, dancers, instrumentalists, set designers and builders, costume makers, and technical crew. Every person, onstage and behind the scenes, has a role in bringing this story to life.

At Lake City Public Schools, we believe students deserve a well-rounded education that keeps doors to their futures open. Our teachers and staff know our students and connect them with experiences that help them discover their strengths, build confidence, and grow as people. As the spotlight shines on our students this weekend, it also illuminates what makes our schools special: caring relationships, meaningful opportunities, and a community that shows up for its young people.

Thank you to our students, staff, families, and volunteers for the time, creativity, and care that made this production possible. And thank you for being here to celebrate their work. May the hope and optimism of Annie! stay with you long after the final curtain.

Enjoy the show!
